

As a father of six children, and grandfather of fourteen young grandchildren, I have become increasingly concerned about the very graphic and violent images that currently can be readily viewed on TV programs today. My wife is a teacher and principal of young school-aged children and has readily seen the effects of violence in childrens behavior. Research supports the belief that there is a direct correlation between the amount of violence children view on TV and violent behavior in children and adolescents. We strongly encourage you to take immediate action to reduce and/or eliminate TV violence.
